Adastra can help you deliver high quality community care and efficiency savings

Aware that Primary Care Trusts have been set the directive of transforming community service whilst delivering against David Nicholson's requirement for substantial efficiency savings, Advanced Health & Care is focused on developing innovative solutions to meet this extreme challenge.

Our mobile patient management systems, including iNurse, are proven to deliver significant economies in community services through the optimisation of resources resulting in first class patient care.

Hi-tech community healthcare is now a reality through the availability of patient information on a PDA, Blackberry or laptops enabling:

Improved productivity – increase in team visits by up to 25% through reducing paperwork and travel time

View and update patient data at point of care - improved quality, safety and reliability of patient care

Delivery of the right care at the right time - avoiding costly and unnecessary admissions and meeting patient preferences

Provision of quality management information - supporting service redesign and cost improvements

Adastra is a proven and versatile solution to the NHS and healthcare sector, meeting today's requirements and addressing your ever-changing needs. Our products can help you transform delivery of community services, meet demanding budgets and still deliver a personalised patient experience.

Recognising the varied needs of our customers, Advanced Health & Care can deliver a mobile solution on a range of devices with affordable pricing including an optional low-cost pilot project enabling you to see real benefits very quickly.
